

Jason Everman Went from Being in Nirvana and Soundgarden to Being an Army Ranger

<https://silosolo.com/720751>

Summary

The speaker went from being a professional rock musician playing in bands like Nirvana and Sound Garden to joining the military. They left Nirvana and Sound Garden due to issues with communication, creative input, and friction within the bands. Moving to New York was a way to recover from being fired from Sound Garden and experience life in the city. The speaker's interest in the military was influenced by their grandfathers who were World War Two veterans. Being fired from Sound Garden had a significant emotional impact on the speaker.

Silo sample questions

- How did the speaker go from playing in Nirvana and Sound Garden to being a soldier?
- What were the main reasons for the speaker leaving Nirvana and Sound Garden?
- What were the speaker's plans when moving to New York?
- What influenced the speaker's interest in the military?
- How did being fired from Sound Garden affect the speaker?

Topics

transition

leaving bands

moving to New York

interest in military

impact of being fired

Key Takeaways

- The speaker fell into being a professional rock musician and played with bands like Nirvana and Sound Garden. They later moved to New York and, after being fired from Sound Garden, ended up joining the military.
- The speaker initially thought they could contribute creatively to the bands, but later realized that their ideas were not being taken seriously. They also faced communication issues and friction within the bands.
- The main plan was to get out of a personal funk caused by being fired from Sound Garden. They wanted to experience life in the city and figure out their next steps.
- The speaker's grandfathers, who were both World War Two veterans, influenced their interest in the military. They found the military intriguing and admired their grandfathers' service.
- Being fired from Sound Garden broke the speaker's heart and caused them to go through a rough patch in their life. It had a significant impact on their emotional state.

Click here for the full transcript

Click here for the source